We've all said it. When it comes to beauty and self-care, we've heard the phrase THE THINGS WE DO echoed from one woman to another, like a secret password to womanhood. We use it in reference to all the things we have experienced for the sake of refinement. We have plucked, waxed, cramped, squeezed, layered, poked, and birthed.

Oh, the things we do for work. The catch, of course, is that it's a trap that ensnares a whole lot of people. Most people have to commute to their jobs. Many people have to dress nicely for work. Many people have lots of extra time commitments baked into their jobs, like travel, extra work at home, and so on.

AllMusic Review by Neil Z. Yeung [+] In the seven years between albums, Swedish dance rock stalwarts the Sounds took a break from music to focus on family and their personal lives, issuing just a single EP to tide fans over in their absence. Returning in 2020 with their sixth set, Things We Do for Love, the crew took those years of change and heartache to craft their best album since 2011's Something to Die For, elevating their '80s-indebted, pop-savvy sound with a grace and vulnerability ...
